Q1. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

We often face a shortage of water, especially during the summer season. This happens because of less rainfall. Water in the river dried up. All living beings need more water during the summers. To solve the problem of water shortage, we can store rain water and use it later. This method is called rain water harvesting. In this method, people keep big container, a drum or a tank in which rainwater is collected. The rain water is filtered and used later. These days many people make homes and factories which have a facility for rain water harvesting.
