SECTION - A (Reading)*Passage-1

Q1. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow.

In the village of Chandanpur lived a baker named Somu. He was famous for his sweets but infamous for being a miser. One afternoon, Somu found a leather pouch in the fields. Inside were forty gold mohurs.

Knowing the Village Head (Sarpanch) had lost his money, Somu took the bag to him, hoping for a reward. But greed took over. He told the Sarpanch, "I found your bag, but I see you already took your reward. There were fifty coins when I found it, and now there are only forty!"

The Sarpanch was a clever man. He knew Somu was lying to get extra money. He calmly said, "If this bag has forty coins, it cannot be mine. My bag had exactly fifty. You must keep this until the owner of the forty coins arrives."

Somu's face turned pale. His lie had cost him the reward and his honesty.

Passage-2

Q2. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow.

In the vibrant Rosewood Colony of Bengaluru, lived a curious ten-year-old named Arjun. While his friends were busy playing mobile games, Arjun loved observing the world around him.

One Saturday morning, Arjun noticed his neighbor, Mrs. Iyer, struggling with a heavy bag of groceries. Without being asked, he rushed over. "Let me help you, Auntie!" he chirped, carrying the bag to her doorstep. Mrs. Iyer smiled warmly, "Thank you, Arjun. You have the heart of a true citizen."

Later that afternoon, Arjun saw Vihaan and Zoya peeling wrappers off chocolates and tossing them onto the park grass. Arjun stopped them gently. "If we all did that, our beautiful park would turn into a dustbin," he explained. Together, they picked up the litter and placed it in the green bin.

"Being a good citizen isn't about big speeches," Arjun's father told him that evening. "It's about respecting our neighbors, following rules like wearing a helmet, and taking care of public property. It's about making India better, one small act at a time." Arjun nodded, realizing that every small deed was a building block for his country.
