Ans: Walt Disney was a wonderful human being because he valued and admired the people who worked with him, appreciated their talent and the fine details of the work they produced.

D.2. How can we say that Walt Disney was both innovative and genius? Trace instances from his life to support your answer.

Ans:Walt Disney was an innovative genius who constantly had one project after another taking shape in his creative mind.The cartoon characters Mickey,Minnie Mouse,Donald Duck, Pluto and Goofy that he brought to life in his movies proved how fertile and unique his imagination was. Though he was dissuaded from making a full length cartoon film ,he was not deterred and his Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, the first ever full length animated film ,became the box office hit that Walt always believed it would be.He dreamt of opening a clean and organized theme park with rides and entertainment based on his characters and movies . Disneyland was opened in Anaheim, California in 1955. His other dream of having a larger theme park in Florida could not be realized when he was alive.However, it was achieved by his brother Roy when Walt Disney World was opened in 1971.

Value and Life Skills

(This is a sample answer on value and life skills question.Taking help from this, complete the answer in your own words.)

Walt Disney said, 'If you can dream it, you can do it.'Do you think believing in one's self is important to achieve one's dreams?

Ans: I think that believing in oneself is very important to achieve one's dreams. If we believe in ourselves and have the confidence to pursue the dreams , we can achieve what we wish. Unless we have faith in our own capabilities and talent, we can never attain our goals or objectives.
