Character sketch of Sakhu:- ( A Garland from Heaven)

Sakhu was a house help of the local zamindar at Aamod. She was kind and benevolent. She was a completely different natured lady. She was empathetic and selfless. She knew she had nothing worth gifting and she hoped that the zamindar's daughters would receive the garland for giving expensive gifts. She was a good soul and knew that 'Guests are God.' She took care of the orphan boy despite of the sisters' objections and gave him hot water to bathe and even gave him her share of festive dinner. Besides this she was utter empathetic to let the boy sleep in her room and did not mind the discomfort she had to put up with to take care of the boy's needs. She was tolerant enough to the anger and displeasure of the zamindar's daughters because she was a compassionate lady.
