STORY TIME

Once upon a time, when Rabindranath Tagore was young, he was playing in his garden. While playing, he accidentally broke a flower plant.

He was afraid that the elders would scold him. But then he thought, 'It's not good to lie.'

He went straight to his father and said, "Father, I made a mistake. I broke a flower plant." Father didn't get angry. He hugged Rabindranath and said,

"Son, it's not bad to make a mistake, but it is bad to hide it. You did a great job by telling the truth."

1. What did Rabindranath break?

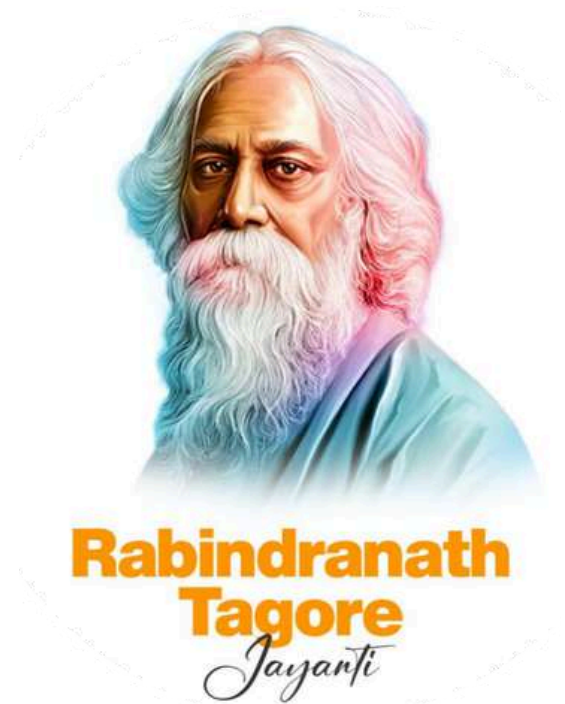

- a) A toy
- b) A book
- c) A flower plant

2. What was Rabindranath afraid of?

- a) Hunger
- b) Getting scolded
- c) Being refused to play

3. What do we learn from this story?

- a) It's okay to lie
- b) One should run away in fear
- c) One should always tell the truth
